Master's degree in Safety Systems (with a specialization in Network Security) and in Public Administration, both from the University of Southern California, blending deep engineering expertise with the leadership skills essential to guiding a high-performing technology enterprise.

Under her leadership, CalQLogic integrates the creative energies and technical abilities of its team to compete credibly against major industry players. Deborah previously founded Cs3, a company that successfully pursued federal R&D projects, leveraging cutting-edge technology to secure patents and build lasting intellectual property.

Co-founder Swamy Narayanaswamy brings complementary technical and operational expertise, helping scale CalQLogic's innovations into commercially viable products and solutions. Together, Deborah and Swamy foster a culture of collaboration, calculated risk-taking, and breakthrough innovation, ensuring the company thrives in a competitive marketplace.

As a technology company, Deborah's journey exemplifies resilience, determination, and visionary entrepreneurship. Through CalQLogic, she continues to push the boundaries of what's possible in analytics and automation, inspiring the next generation of innovators.
